Armistice was made known prior to the time that he expected it to be.

A cousin of the Baron Schulenburg, who is a German diplomat in Sweden and is dealing there with the Russian Ambassadors Madam Kollontai, has arrived in Locarno from Rome via Stuttgart and Zurich. What can he be up to?

A man in the Italian Consulate General, with a name something like Gallanti, told our friend, showing him documents to substantiate it, that the Badoglio Government had granted him an entrance visa shortly after the Armistice but that the Consulate had not notified our friend because the visa was accompanied by instructions to let Rome know when our friend got to the border so that he could be arrested on three charges, dating as far back as 1927, for offenses against the King.
