christians, republicans, dissident communists), all agree that the country must be lead by new forces and that the future form of the Italian state must be a democratic one. They all agree in asking for the abdication of the King, the dismissal of Badoglio, the cleaning up of fascists still remaining in the leading circles, the revaluation of the country. Inside the opposition there is a leftwing block which is made up of the Action party, the socialist and communist parties; this block will be a decisive one in future events.
